POST-SIGNATURE READINESS

Signing isn't your move-in checklist

Use separate signoffs for allocation, signatures, funds, readiness and access.

A completed envelope confirms signing, not every condition required before possession.

Start from the authorized decision

Locate the recorded rental decision and approved terms before preparing a lease.

Extraction and criteria results don't replace an authorized person's approval.

Confirm the home allocation

Check the authoritative property record and approved hold policy.

Allocation needs its own supported event; draft applications or duplicate leads don't prove exclusive availability.

Confirm the required signing transaction

Check required signers

and the provider's completion status.

One signature or a sent email doesn't prove every required party has finished.

Get funds status from its source

When funds are required before possession, check the approved accounting or payment record.

Distinguish pending, received and cleared under policy; signing proves none.

THE READINESS OWNER

Give home readiness an owner

Name who confirms readiness and where the signoff lives.

Unfinished repairs or missing inspections remain a blocker, even after the agreement is signed.

Check other applicable conditions

For insurance or other readiness evidence required by policy and applicable obligations, name its source and reviewer.

Automation mustn't invent requirements or assume completion.

Release access through an authorized step

Confirm applicable readiness conditions before the authorized handover.

Record who released access and when; a signing callback alone mustn't release keys or lock credentials.

THE DEMO ENDPOINT

Keep this demo's endpoint separate

This build confirms a sandbox signature and welcome delivery, not funds, inspections, all production signers or possession.

Those require separate production design.

A REUSABLE SIGNOFF

Use a readiness signoff record

Condition.	Required evidence.
Source system.	Owner.
Status.	Blocker.
Confirmed time.	Handover authority.

Complete applicable rows with operations staff before automating access or possession.
